

The Journey of a Missionary Family

1. Early in life Glenn sensed that unless he obeyed God's call to missions, he would never be happy. Can you think of a time in your life where you also knew God was calling you to something specific? Describe the process you went through to answer that call. _____

2. One of the valuable components to Glenn's preparation for the mission field was the experience he gained working as a mechanic for FEA Ministries. Why is it so important to have this kind of practical training for those who serve in missions? _____

3. It is of vital importance that churches have a passion for missions. Both Glenn and Stephanie were called to be missionaries before they reached their teen years! Mission services are one way for this passion to be maintained. What other ways can you think of to keep a strong mission focus at your church? _____

4. Families should fan the flame of a passion for missions that is ignited at church. How can you keep missions a central focus of your home? _____

5. It can be very difficult to live in a foreign culture and minister to people who do things differently than you. What surprises you most about the cultural adjustments the Gaults had to make? _____

6. Sometimes we can easily forget the vital role missionary children play in their family's ministry. In what ways are the Gault children helping their parents on the mission field? _____

- How can you more effectively pray for Kaitlyn, Kristell, and Caleb Gault? _____

7. While there are challenges to living in a foreign place, what are some of the unique blessings that accompany the life of a missionary? _____

8. After learning more about the lives of the Gaults on the mission field, what are some specific ways that you can support their ministry? _____
