

Bringing Hope to Broken People

1. In Matthew 25 Jesus encourages us to feed the poor, visit those in prison, and clothe the naked. These are fairly easy instructions to follow, but what is the deeper concept Jesus wants His disciples to understand? _____

2. When tragedy strikes, the church must be ready to act. These are prime moments when we can minister to both the body and soul with the truth of God. How is your church equipped to deal with the brokenness of people around it? _____

3. Sometimes when talking about ministry opportunities, we automatically think of needs outside the church. But ministering to others should begin within the local congregation which will then overflow into the community. What are some needs you personally can help address within your church family? _____

4. Hannah Kuhns describes the purposeful ministry approach to women and youth in the Honduran churches. It is important to ensure that no demographic is ignored in the body of Christ. Rather, young and old, male and female should all have their spiritual and emotional needs met. How is your church intentionally ministering to these various groups? _____

5. What did Jesus say His disciples should be known for? _____

6. Beyond just a place to hear preaching, worship God, and enjoy Christian fellowship, what does Eric remind us a primary focus of the church should be? _____

7. It can be tempting to think if our ministry efforts are not done on a grand scale, then they are not significant. However, many of the ministries done by the churches in Honduras are simple acts of kindness in Jesus' name. Ministry to others does not have to be complicated. How can you bring glory to your heavenly Father this month by helping people in your community? _____
